Overview of the dispute resolution process under the Code of Conduct

Disputes requiring a conciliator occur where there is a dispute over whether an Agreement has been breached.. Before commencing a formal dispute resolution process senior representatives of the parties shall use their best endeavours to resolve the dispute by discussion and negotiation. Should these negotiations fail, a conciliation may be required. A disputing party pursuing conciliation (the complainant) must give notice in writing (including by email) to the other party (the respondent) and a copy to the Secretariat<sup>1</sup> specifying

- (i) the nature of the Dispute with reasonable particulars;
- (ii) the desired outcome of the Complainant; and
- (iii) reasoning as to why that outcome is just.

The Secretariat may liaise with the parties, individual or together, in order to facilitate an early resolution of the dispute.

According to The Code a Conciliation will be conducted in accordance with the procedure set out in Appendix 2 of the Code by:

The Code requires both parties to participate in the Dispute Resolution procedure and to assist the Conciliator by providing any information requested. Any Disputing Party who invokes the Dispute Resolution Procedures is agreeing to be bound by the Code in relation to the conduct of the Dispute. The existence of a Dispute does not relieve any party of the obligations under the agreement between a winegrape supplier and a signatory to the Code.

Further Information

If you require further information, please see Part 6 of the Code which details the dispute resolution provisions or, if you have any questions about these procedures, please contact the Code Secretariat.
